It is unlikely, however, that, notwithstanding temporary successes of this nature, which we expect are exaggerated by the fears of the mandarins, the rebels will be able to offer any serious resistance to Major Gordon in his advance from Kintang, by the capture of which he has seriously threatened their communications with Nankin .-

Newchwang Market Report. Written for the." Friend of China."] Yangreza, 27th February, 1864.

We take advantage of this opportunity to send you market reports of this date, and to give you a resumée of the passing winter, which has very mild allowing the arrival of a large amount of produce. We understand the present high prices are owing to the producers holding upon own account. Should we have but few arrivals in shipping, however, we may speedily expect more favorable rates; -and freights, at the o of the port, should rule rather high. Our present stock of imports is not large, and the amount introduced into the interior and the Corea during the past season was but small so soon as trade fairly recovers, we may expect a good demand, and, we hope, at very favorable rates. The country so far, has been perfectly tranquil -communications with all parts being open. The Mandarins have been unusually active during After the closing of the port, a Rifle Volunteer corps was formed, the whole of the foreign community enrolling themselves as members. The whole mass of ice upon the surface of the river now rises and falls a great many feet with the tides, and lanes are forming some miles from

Our last was dated the 3rd ult., and business continued uncommonly dull until the China new year, when an improvement took place, I imports and exports; but we are sorry to say that the latter are far too dear to think of touching.
